

Was kannst du bereits?

Woche 13 / Multiplizieren und Dividieren

Name:

|                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                 |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1) Rechne im Kopf: $3 \cdot 0.04 =$$20 \cdot 0.7 =$$300 \cdot 0.6 =$                                                                   | 2) Rechne im Kopf: $4.0 : 8 =$$0.045 : 9 =$$1.8 : 30 =$                                                                   | 3) Rechne im Kopf: $7 \cdot 2.04 =$$34.5 : 5 =$$5 \cdot 0.505 =$ |
| 4) Ergänze den fehlenden Dezimalpunkt $6 \cdot 52.52 = \mathbf{31512}$$40 \cdot 13.64 = \mathbf{5456}$$15 \cdot 0.858 = \mathbf{1287}$ | 5) Ergänze den fehlenden Dezimalpunkt $18.24 : 6 = \mathbf{304}$$185.6 : 80 = \mathbf{232}$$54'120 : 300 = \mathbf{1814}$ |                                                                                 |
| 6) <math>5 \cdot 24 =</math> <math>5 \cdot 2.4 =</math> <math>50 \cdot 2.4 =</math>                                                  | 7) <math>720 : 8 =</math> <math>72 : 80 =</math> <math>7.2 : 80 =</math>                                                |                                                                                 |
| 8) Notiere die Zwischenergebnisse $4030.2 : 5 =$ $12 \cdot 64.5 =$                                                                             |                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                 |
|                                                                   |                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                 |
| 9) Rechne schriftlich $3.448 : 4 =$ $8 \cdot 95.407 =$                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                 |
|                                                                   |                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                 |